of the Foreign Relations Committee and under the law. four of his associates to-day took steps

"A disgraceful performance" was the way Senator Stone characterized the act of giving out the secret work of the committee. He also threatened to have the offender or offenders sent to jail.

"No man connected with the committee in any capacity can give out the confidential business of that committee without he has upon him the brand of absolute dishonor and betrayal," added Mr. Stone in addressing the Senate on the Absolves Mr. Bryan.

The Senator from Missouri declared that it was "incredibly impossible that either Secretary Bryan or the Nicaraguans have given out information.

It is impossible to believe that the Secretary of State was guilty of the dishonorable act of betraying the confidence of the committee," he said.

At the morning meeting of the committee to-day at which the "leaks" were discussed there were five Democrats and one Republican-Senator Smith of Michigan, who is opposed to the treaty. Other publicans have remained away.

One Republican member said a few days ago that he was tired of attending the committee hearings and have Mr. Bryan, who seemed to be wet nursing the committee, gravely impose secrecy on everybody present and then give out the version of the affair that he wanted to to the public through the press. This ber has therefore remained away.

When the committee adjourned it was was to be carried into the open Senate, where Mr. Stone told his story, read a statement from the committee and offered a resolution for an investigation, which was referred to the Committee on Audit and Control.

Mr. Stone's Resolution.

This is the resolution: That the Committee on Foreign Relations be and hereby is authorized and empowered to investigate and ascertain from whom information of any business transacted before said committee in executive session relat-ing to international affairs is given out, and to prosecute said investiga-tion said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to send for per-sons, papers, to issue subpœnas, to administer oaths and to employ stenographers to take testimony at not exceeding $1 per printed page; the expenses of said investigation to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate on warrants signed be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate on warrants signed by the chairman of said committee. Senator Norris of Nebraska, after inquiring why Senators not on the committee had not been supplied with copies of the testimony, offered a resolution directing that this be done.

Senator Stone explained that it was deemed advisable for the present to withhold the copies from the Senators who are not members of the committee. Senator not members of the committee Smith served notice on Chairman Stone later that he had information that some of Secretary Bryan's friends outside of the committee had been coming to the Capitol and carrying away copies of the testimony.

May Bring Open Discussion.

It is believed that the investigation and uproar created over the "leaks" will lead to opening the doors on the discussion. Mr. Norris declared in open Senate that he saw no reason why Senators should be kept in the dark as to what was going on the committee or even why the public in the committee or even why the public should not know about it also. Senator Borah has had in mind a resolution calling for open doors on the debate on the treaties and full publicity.

Senator Stop was evidently very angry over the publication of testimony on the issuance of the additional currency by the blog administration and declared to day newspaper men are to be called and quizzed and made to divulge the sources of their information on penalty of the contempt process. The committee under the Stone resolution is to be armed with all powers necessary to enforce its demand one breath Senator Stone declared that the information in the newspapers was grossly inaccurate and then he said published reports indicate that some one had been talking out of committee.

Mr. Underwood then turned his attention to statements which he said have been made recently with reference to the condition of the Treasury, all pointing out that the present tariff law would leave a great deficit.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Underwood of the law being a disappointment as a revenue measure it has exceeded the expectations of those who Representative Underwood, the Democratic leader, the House to-day concurred in a Senate amendment to the legislative bill appropriating $1,500,000 to defray the expenses of collecting the income tax in the new fiscal year.

He declared that the customs features of the tariff law had yielded more revenue than was estimated and that the income tax had fully met expectations. He charged that Republicans who predicted a Treasury deficit "were dreaming dreams" and that alarmist reports concerning Treasury conditions were prompted to criticise the Republican tariffs, asserting that under them in 1909 the Treasury reported a deficit of $118,000,000.

His speech, which will doubtless be used as a text by Democratic orators in defending the new tariff in the coming campaign, was followed by the House with great interest. The significance of his statement that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue wanted $500,000 to institute an inquiry to determine how many persons had evaded payment of the income tax in the first ten months of the come tax in the first ten months of the operation of the act was not lost on the House. It confirms other indications that the Democratic Administration pro-poses to resort to drastic inquisitorial methods in collecting this tax. "The commissioner told me," said Mr.

Underwood, "that the indications are that a great many people have not made their income tax returns and that some who have made their returns have not made them as the law requires, som through ignorance, some through mistake and some through deliberation. For these reasons I think it is important that the appropriation should be increased to the amount fixed by the Senate, $1,500,000.

"Although the returns from the income tax this year will not reach the maximum and will fall somewhat less than $100,000,000, I think I can demonstrate to the House that the ordinary returns that will be collected from the income tax and the corporation, tax in a normal very will.

ceeded the expectations of those wrote the law."

The Democrats applauded this statement and then Mr. Underwood began to read from a statement which he said was furnished by the experts of the Treasury Department yesterday. As he went along added to the statement from his own information.

"When the recent tariff bill was writ-"When the recent tarm bill was written," he said, "the committee estimated that receipts from the customs duties under the first year of that bill would amount to $270,000,000. That amount has been exceeded by the returns that have been received by the Treasurer's estimated the timate of the moneys that will be received from the customs for this fiscal year amount to $292,000,000, or an excess in customs receipts of $22,000,000 above the estimate that we stated to the House when the bill became a law.

"Under the last year of the Payne bill the receipts from customs dues amounted to $318,000,000, so that it is seen the falling off in customs dues between the present law and the Payne law will amount to the difference between $218,000,000 and $282,000,000, or about $26,000,000. Of course we expected there would be a falling off in the receipts from customs to some extent, or if we had not we would not have preposed the income tax.

not have proposed the income tax.

'The Treasury reports that at the end of this fiscal year the internal revenue will amount to about $309,000,000, which is a falling off of $3,000,000 in our estimates, but it is equal to the amount of the internal revenue taxes that were re ceived under the last year of the Payne haw exclusive of the corporation tax which in that year amounted to $309,-000,000, exactly the amount the internal revenue receipts will amount to this year so far as millions are concerned."

"I call attention to the fact that at the end of the fiscal year of 1909 under the Payne bill there was a total deficit of $118,000,000."

This statement brought the veteran New This statement brought the veteran New York member, Mr. Payne, to his feet. "Well, now." said Mr. Payne. "I want to call the attention of the gentlemen to the fact that the Payne bill did not go into operation until the end of the fiscal year 1909. You cannot blame the Payne bill."
"The Payne bill was partly in operation and the Dingley bill was partly in operation," replied Mr. Underwood.

Mr. Payne then said that June 30, 1909, ended that fiscal year and the Payne bill did not go into operation until after that Decision in Advanced Rate Case Now Expected to Come on July 3.

WASHINGTON, June 27 .- The Interstate Commerce Commission announced to-day that it has suspended from July 1 until October 29 the operation of certain tariffs filed by the Eastern trunk lines, including the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, the New York Central, the Erie and others operating in official classification and central freight association territory.

The suspended tariffs provide for charge of five and a half cents a ton, net or gross as rated, with a minimum charge of $2 a car for switching freight to and from points located on private sidings and industrial plant tracks. These are what have been referred to in the advanced rate case as spotting and switching charges. The carriers originally filed these tariffs with the commission to become effective more than two months ago, but at the request of the commission they were formally withdrawn and later filed in a uniform manner and along lines suggested by the commission.

The action of the commission is interpreted in two ways in connection with the advanced rate case. One interpretation is that the commission is going to allow a straight increase in freight rates and that hence there will be no necessity for the carriers to make these charges to increase their revenue.

Another interpretation is that the commission will turn down the application for increase and show how by enforcing these tariffs for spotting and switching and other reforms there will be no necessity for the commission to allow a straight increase in rates.
